Exalted Ruler Frank G. Aubrey presided on Thursday evening at the regular meeting of Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., which was held with a good attendance in Pythian hall. Usual matters of business were transacted and reports of progress were made by the committees having in charge the preparation of the new Elks' home. The alterations committee has reported that this part of the work is about completed and the fur-work is about completed and the fur-nishings committee can now proceed with its share of the work. It is hardly expected to get into the build-ing before the first of the year.

The meeting considered a communi-cation from the Past Exalted Rulers' association, which proposed to tender a complimentary banquet in Bridge-port to the officers of the grant being port to the officers of the grand lodge. All Elks are to be invited. Norwich lodge will take further action on the proposal at the next meeting in the way of securing names of those who would attend the banquet. Norwich lodge has a social session at its next meeting this month.

the Enthusiasm at New London. The New London prohibitionists have at last come to life. They held a much advertised rally Thursday evening in Lyric hall, New London, which nearly came to grief because of a heavy down pour of cold water. As it was, the quality and enthusiasm made up any lack in the size of the crowd. *

Town Chairman Elias P. Smith presided and Introduced the representative candidates, William A. Ames and Dr. E. C. Chiemen who stacks to the Dr. E. C. Chipman, who spoke to the point and received vigorous applause. Captain J. L. Handall of Groton, candidate for the state senate, gave an address, marked by his usual number of sea stories and telling illustrations. The main address of the evening was by Rev. A. Judson Bolster of Water-bury, an orstor of note and chair man of the 1910 state convention at Meriden. He was liberally applauded, arousing much enthusiasm.

The singing by the Y. M. C. A. quartette was a much enjoyed feature.

DIRECTOR THOMPSON'S PAINTINGS EXHIBITED | Magazine.

Shown in Converse Art Gallery and Greatly Admired by Large Number of Art Lovers.

Visitors to the Converse Art gallery on Thursday afternoon found an interesting exhibit of paintings by George Albert Thompson, B. F. A., the present director of the Norwich Art school. The opening of the exhibit took place from 2 till 5 and was attended by many friends of the school, who expressed much appreciation of the exhibit. This will well repay a visit to the gallery and as it remains open until the 12th of this month those who were delayed by yesterday's weather may still have the opportunity. This interesting collection of Mr. Thompson's work is all in oil and includes portraits, landscapes and marine cludes portraits, landscapes and marine views. They cover a period of many years in art work and are consequently notable for their great variety. There are impressionist pictures as well as the regular school. A good example of the regular school. A good example of this class is the printing of the Boulevard Garibaldi in Paris, in which the effect of the midday heat is portrayed. The portrait of Prof. Niemeyer is an excellent piece of work and makes one already acquainted with the professor. The Brook is an exquisite little bit of form and color. Most of Mr. Thompson's studies are soft and quiet in tone and his later pictures remind one tone and his later pictures remind one of Whistler's. There are several of these nocturnal views with their air of these nocturnal views with their air of mystery so that practically all methods and schools of art are represented. Many of the pictures have already been exhibited in New York and Philadelphia and some are going from here to Hartford and Washington. The scenes are taken in Paris, in Normandy and in Connecticut, the foreign ones being the artist's earlier work. There are fifty-seven pictures in the exhibit. The subjects are Early Morning, Normandy, Study—Max Dellfant, Indian Summer. Twilight, Normandy. Portrait Study, Miss E.
